MYRSINI VERDOUKAS

MYRSINI VERDOUKAS is a professional educator, teacher trainer and author with more than 28 years of experience. As a passionate director of studies of two award-winning and innovative schools on the islands of Paros and Antiparos, she has impacted language education all around Greece and Cyprus. Her unique experiential approach 'Myrsini's Edutainment' is shared in her recently-published books and now her workshops on Myrsini's Edutainment and Myrsini's Village are spreading rapidly. Myrsini believes that the language learning experience should be connected with the promotion of respect, values and hands-on experience.

'Edutainment-ing' your course book!

A practical workshop exploring hands-on activities on how to use this unique teaching approach with your students from pre-primary to advanced levels. This workshop enables you to comprehend how to efficiently implement this teaching approach, how to create your own material and also to experience the emotional benefits of this amazing way of teaching.

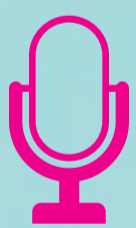

JUNE 15 / 10:30 - 12:30

JENNY DOOLEY

JENNY DOOLEY, the President of Express Publishing, holds an MEd from the University of Wales, Swansea. She has been a teacher, teacher trainer and author in the ELT field for more than twenty years. She has travelled extensively, delivering seminars and holding workshops all over the world. She is the owner and manager of one of the piloting schools used by Express Publishing and is the president of HEC, a language exams distribution centre. Her research interests include: language acquisition in young learners; the application of the multiple intelligence theory in language learning; gamification in education; neuroscience; and modern assessment. She has been involved in the development of printed, audiovisual, animated and digital ELT material for more than two decades. Some of her latest publications are: #English, iWonder, Right On, Incredible 5, and On Screen. She has also designed DigiBooks, a gamified LMS platform with ELT content.

To act or not to act?

Teaching English through drama is a very familiar, tried and tested, engaging and inspiring way to learn the language! In this workshop we will encounter various of drama activities and analyse procedures, planning and aims. Students are more able to use the language effectively outside the classroom if they have practiced through drama activities, role play and simulations within the classroom!

JUNE 16 / 10:30 - 12:30

DR MIKE KENTERIS

DR MIKE KENTERIS has a privately owned Language Teaching Organisation in the island of Lesbos. His studies include an MEng, MSc and a PhD in Mobile Application Design and Context-Aware Computing.

As a passionate EFL educator, he believes in engaging his learners through active learning spaces and the use of technology as tools to achieve learning outcomes. His current research interests include blended learning environments and flipped learning.

Let's get Phygital!

Returning to the 'new normal' has brought about unprecedented changes in how our students learn best in our classrooms. In this workshop, we go through the ways we can exploit this to create gripping lessons by interlacing them with tech and 'CLILing' our coursebook.

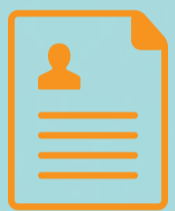

JUNE 17 / 10:30 - 12:30

KONSTANTINA KARAMOUTA

KONSTANTINA holds a BA in English Language and English Language Teaching (University of Greenwich) and is currently studying for a Diploma in TESOL. She is a teacher and director of studies in her family's English school in Kavala. Konstantina loves innovation, alternative and unconventional thinking and she is constantly trying to find new methods and approaches to implement. She is the founder of the STEAM Network and the designer of the English language programme 'Steps Into The World', a holistic approach promoting learning through STEAM to young learners. She strongly believes that we can change the world through education.

LET'S STEAM THE WAY!

STEAM is a broadly recognised method of teaching all over the globe. In this workshop, we are going to explore how we can implement Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts and Mathematics to teach English to young learners. From scientific experiments to 3D crafts, we will find new ways to give our students a chance to explore the world.
