The Flying Carpet

Where are the two girls?
What are they doing?

It was a warm summer night. Susan and her younger sister Sandy were lying on a colourful carpet on the terrace of their village house. They looked at the stars and the moon above them. They loved chatting about their dreams and wanted to leave their home one day.

"I want to be as rich as a princess. I will wear the most beautiful dresses and live in a palace. My servants will do everything for me," said Sandy. Susan smiled and turned to her sister. "Being rich is not the most important thing in life." "What's more important than being rich?" asked Sandy.

"Sandy, you have to understand that money doesn't bring happiness. The people we love do."

"I don't agree. I wish we could fly away and leave this place forever!"

What does Sandy want?
Why?
